EXPLORE

One starting point can lead to multiple destinations.

Chart the course that's right for you.

Because we're a comprehensive Catholic university grounded in the liberal arts, you'll get the chance to test new ideas, challenge conventional wisdom, and explore how the world is interconnected — no matter what you study or what path you want to pursue. We believe you aren't here to simply absorb information and get a degree. At University of Portland, you'll be encouraged to think beyond the academic requirements of a particular major and see the larger picture of who you want to be and what you want to do. We want you to take the time to ask questions, then put your knowledge into action.

Take a step further.

And seek the knowledge you need.

At University of Portland, every academic program is rooted in a liberal arts core curriculum that provides a knowledge base and six habits of heart and mind to address enduring questions of human concern, solve complex problems, and make effective, ethical decisions. Think of the University core curriculum as a compass that will guide you through your educational experience at UP and life after graduation. And, as we have a variety of professional schools and programs, there's flexibility in shaping your academic future. Whether it's choosing to add a minor or even pursuing two different majors, that final plan is yours to shape.

Things are different here.

Our location and size are just the right combination.

UP sits on 150 acres nestled in a quiet residential neighborhood on a bluff overlooking the Willamette River, downtown Portland, and Forest Park, one of the nation's largest urban forests. With under 4,000 undergraduate students, we're big enough that you'll have plenty of space and opportunity to grow and discover who you want to be, but small enough that we'll get to know you as well. Our professors not only share their knowledge but also offer advice and support—whether it's helping with a specific assignment or discussing potential career paths. And with most classes smaller than 30 students and a 11:1 student-faculty ratio, every voice can be part of the conversation.

Go beyond your comfort zone.

Explore uncharted waters and new territories.

Our community is a place where diversity, equity, and inclusion are valued. Here, you can learn from various perspectives both on and off campus. There are films, lectures, plays, and concerts to attend; initiatives in entrepreneurship, leadership, and innovation to join; and activities to lead through clubs, intramurals, residence halls, and student government. Our Moreau Center for Service and Justice offers immersion programs, as well as connections to organizations that share our commitment to social justice. Further afield, students explore new cultures through studying abroad. But whatever you choose, you'll easily make connections that last well beyond your college days, especially because the majority of our students live on campus.

Take time to get outside.

And find the unexpected.

Things look different from a new vantage point, and the experiences that await you in Portland are boundless. Just minutes away by bike, bus, or foot are several different neighborhoods, where you can explore music and sports venues, thrift shops and bookstores, coffee spots and food carts, or biking and hiking paths. You'll also be close to opportunities for internships, practica, and other hands-on, work-integrated learning experiences—preparing you for whatever comes after these next four years. When you need to go a bit further, there's still lots to see. Just 90 minutes to the west you can explore the Oregon Coast and 90 minutes to the east you'll find the slopes of Mt. Hood—perfect for weekend adventures.

With

A VIEW FROM

YOUR FUTURE

FROM THE BLUFF,
RE becomes CLEAR.

We acknowledge the land on which we sit and which we occupy at University of Portland. “The Portland Metro area rests on traditional village sites of the Multnomah, Wasco, Cowlitz, Kathlamet, Clackamas, Bands of Chinook, Tualatin, Kalapuya, Molalla, and many other tribes who made their homes along the Columbia River creating communities and summer encampments to harvest and use the plentiful natural resources of the area” (Portland Indian Leaders Roundtable, 2018). We take this opportunity to thank the original caretakers of this land.
